Hospital switch to garden town stalls

Suggested relocation of PAH now under review by NHS bosses, claims councillor

By Sam Meadows

sam.meadows@hertsessexnews.co.uk

POSSIBLE moves to incorporate Princess Alexandra Hospital (PAH) into the new Gilston garden town have stalled – with three other sites being considered.

Plans to move the under-pressure Harlow hospital have been on the table for years, with the proposed 10,000-home Gilston development reportedly one of four sites under consideration.

But now it appears the Hamstel

Road hospital, which is severely over capacity, could be staying put.

The East Herts District Plan is set to be sent to the Government at the end of the week and contains a line suggesting Gilston as a possible spot for a relocated PAH.

Stalled

But Robert Brunton, councillor for Gilston on East Herts District Council, said discussions had “stalled” as the NHS looked to determine how expensive improving the current site would be. He said: “I am on the cooperative committee and it probably comes up every session but it’s no further on than a consultation among all the relevant parties.”

“I think at the moment it’s stalled because the NHS are unsure themselves about how to fund it and whether it’s worth improving the PAH at its current site.”

Princess Alexandra was designed to serve a population of 60,000 people but is now forced to cope with well over 100,000. At the moment, Gilston is one of four possible sites and a PAH spokeswoman would not reveal the locations of the others.

However, it is thought that one is in Uttlesford and two in the Harlow area.

Evaluating

The spokeswoman said: “The trust is working with local authority partners in evaluating a range of options for the future

TAKING CENTRE STAGE: Leaders of ((BOUNCE)) celebrate the new world record

Trampoline queen helps to send record tumbling

Event featuring 405 people was organised by Harlow woman

By William Mata

william.mata@hertsexsexnews.co.uk

THE founder of a Harlow fitness group was behind a world record-breaking event for the number of people simultaneously bouncing on mini-trampolines.

Kimberlee Perry, 33, of Church Langley, Harlow, arranged for 405 people to take part in a ((BOUNCE)) class at the Fitness Fiesta in Camber Sands on the Sussex coast earlier this month.

The event smashed the previous record of 324 people using the mini-trampolines, called trampettes.

The event was not verified as an official Guinness World Record but stands as the largest event of its kind ever held.

Showcase

Mrs Perry said: "Aiming to beat the world record initially meant we'd get the opportunity to showcase on a large scale how at ((BOUNCE)) we make fitness fun, which is our primary goal.

"However, on the day, it became evident the event was more about the spirit of teamwork, because working together to break a world record on that kind of scale meant we needed every single person fully invested in helping each other."

Mrs Perry founded the Harlow group at Paringdon Sports Centre, where it still meets, with just eight trampettes before ((BOUNCE)) expanded to more than 70 venues across the nation.

She continued: "The amazing crew that got our 420 trampolines there, our instructors who came from all over the UK to help, plus every single person bouncing around, [all deserve credit]."

Rewarding

"There is nothing more rewarding than knowing that to achieve great things, you just have to support each other. I'm most proud of ((BOUNCE)) for that."

Plan to relocate hospital to new site 'has stalled' provision and location of hospital services in the area, including developing the existing site.

"We recognise that it is essential that the hospital is capable of meeting future growth in demand, so it is actively working with all partners to consider sustainable options locally."

Spike Hughes, from the Stop Harlow North campaign group, which is opposing the development at Gilston, said he thought the site was not suitable for a hospital.

"Obviously we have objected to anything being built on those fields so a hospital is included in anything," he said.

"What I would say, even if Harlow North (Gilston) went ahead, there's no room for it, where would it go?"

"Hospitals are very large. The only way I see it going there is either they renege on their promise to save open spaces, or they reduce the number of houses."

"I think you can guess which of those they would choose."

The East Herts District Plan was due to be debated by the council yesterday (Wednesday) before being sent to Whitehall at the end of the week.

Children in care lagging behind in GCSE exams

ALARMING figures have revealed that children in care are achieving grades far worse than those cared for at home.

Children in the care system did six times worse than their peers in their GCSE exams last year.

Only 10.5 per cent of children in care in Essex attained A* to C grades at GCSE in English and maths in 2016, according to data released by the Department for Education.

Those 85 children had been in the care system for at least a year. In comparison, 64.3 per cent of children out of the care system in the county achieved grades at A* to C at GCSE.

These figures show that children in care were six times less likely to achieve the important benchmark of good GCSE performance.

It was also the lowest proportion for children in care in Essex over the past five years.

The statistics show that children in care were falling behind as early as five years old. Only a third of children who were looked after by Essex County Council reached the required standard for writing at Key Stage 1 in 2016, compared with 68 per cent overall for the county.

FILMED: The video showed a heated exchange outside Hare Street School

Row over minibus parking goes viral

A ROW between a pedestrian and a minibus driver in Harlow that started over parking and ended with accusations of racism has been seen by thousands online.

A Harlow resident, who did not wish to be named, filmed his heated exchange outside Hare Street Primary School on Tuesday March 21.

The white vehicle is pictured straddling the kerb and the camera man asks the driver to move.

The angered man, wearing a high-vis jacket, tells the cameraman to stop filming.

After a suggestion the camera man has a racist motive, the pair shout at each other before the driver says he works for Harlow Council and slams the door.

Later the same day, the video was uploaded to Facebook and has been seen more than 9,000 times.

The man who made the video said: "The incident started as I was going to pick my daughter up from school.

"As I came around the corner I saw the bus reversing up onto the pavement.

"I went past his van and told him he shouldn't be on the pavement or double yellow lines.

Empty

"He told me he could park there and there was nowhere else to park.

"I went to pick my daughter up from school and when I came back he was still there sitting in an empty bus."

Despite the driver's claim, Harlow Council and Essex County Council have said the man is not one of their employees and the bus did not carry any branding.

The father continued: "I took my phone out, took a photo of his licence plate and where he was positioned in the road.

"He shouted at me that I shouldn't take his photo.

"He also told me he was allowed to park there as there was nowhere else to park.

"I replied you're blocking the path, you're putting our kids lives at stake.

"At this point he told me that as nobody else had complained I was being racist.

"At this point I started the video. I felt angry and concerned."

KAO PARK: Site for the medical technology centre

500 new jobs forecast as MedTech deal signed in Medical technology centre approved

By William Mata

william.mata@hertsexnews.co.uk

FIVE HUNDRED jobs are set to be created in Harlow after plans for a £5 million medical technology centre was approved.

Anglia Ruskin University and Essex County Council (ECC) signed an agreement to each pay £2.5 million towards the MedTech facility in Harlow Enterprise Zone in Hockham Way last Friday (March 24).

The deal follows the opening of the Advanced Manufacturing and Engineering Centre at Harlow College and Public Health England announcing their science hub will open in the Pinnacles estate.

The MedTech centre is expected to open next year in the Kao Park part of the zone, and councillor Kevin Bentley, ECC deputy leader, hopes the complex will rival Silicon Valley.

He said: "This weekend we are celebrating Harlow's 70th anniversary and this announcement is for its next 70 years and beyond.

"ECC is hugely ambitious when it comes to medical science. This is something that is all about the people of Harlow. It is one of our main towns and we are proud of what it has achieved."

Investors

When asked about the financial risk on the back of Brexit, Mr Bentley said the centre would make Harlow an attractive place for non-EU international investors.

The deal was announced as ECC published a special report in response to the Government's industrial strategy, which pointed out how projects such as MedTech can boost the economy.

Mr Bentley added: "Essex is open for business."

Anglia Ruskin is also seeking to establish MedTech parks in Chelmsford and Southend. The university has started apprenticeship schemes at Harlow College to replace traditional degrees.

Professor Iain Martin, vice chancellor of Anglia Ruskin University, said: "This is an extremely exciting project with the potential to help the county become a world leader in the medical technology sector."

Two days after he was in Parliament during the Westminster attack, Harlow MP Robert Halfon attended the signing which took place in the Arrow Electronics Centre at Harlow Enterprise Zone.

He said: "It is incredible to see this transformation of Harlow. It is becoming the MedTech capital of the East of England."

SIGNING UP: David Humber, provost of Anglia Ruskin University, MP Robert Halfon and Kevin Bentley, deputy leader of Essex County Council

New plan for pothole repairs 'an absolute joke'

POTHLES and poor road surfaces in Harlow could be tackled by an innovative trial treatment, which has divided councillors.

Essex Highways says its proposed resurfacing technique is efficient and cost effective, but critics have argued it only scratches the surface of the problem.

The trial involves patching individual defects and applying a thin film coating over the entire road surface to make it waterproof.

It will be trialed in Castle Point and Chelmsford with a number of other sites under consideration, including Basildon and Harlow.

Councillor Eddie Johnson, Essex County Council cabinet member for highways and transport, said: "In the last few years significant investment has brought our priority routes up to a very good condition.

"We are now turning our attention to improving our local roads, which are the ones that generally concern individual residents the most.

"Whilst we cannot afford to improve everywhere in the short-term, we are working hard with our technical partners to identify a mixture of proven and innovative ways to make roads easier to maintain and safer, making our investment go further."

However, Mr Johnson, who is also a Conservative member of Harlow Council, was criticised by members of the local authority's Labour group.

Councillor Mike Danvers said: "This is an absolute joke. The patching that has taken place does not last long and Harlow roads need resurfacing.

"Eddie Johnson needs to hear Labour's call for a change in the Essex formula for road maintenance and adopt road usage instead of mileage. This would give Harlow a much better deal.

"Mr Johnson has been in a position to improve Harlow's roads for over two years. Why is he making this announcement only a few weeks before the election?"

Academy head teacher is set to retire after 27 years

Rhonda will say farewell in summer with current deputy taking over

By William Mata

william.mata@hertsessexnews.co.uk

STEWARDS Academy in Harlow has announced that longstanding head teacher Rhonda Murthar will retire this summer after 27 years.

Since taking the reins of the Parnall Road secondary school in 1990, Ms Murthar has taught thousands of children and helped it to secure a 'good' Ofsted result.

Helen Ginger, the current deputy head teacher, will assume the top job from September after 15 years of service.

Xhead

Jeff Tarling, chairman of governors, said: "After 27 years of committed service, with a relentless drive to ensure pupils get the very best educational experience, Rhonda Murthar will be retiring this summer."

"We are delighted with our new appointment and are confident that the high quality of care for each and every one of our pupils will be maintained under Mrs Ginger's leadership."

Mrs Ginger has risen through the ranks, from learning support assistant through to head teacher of mathematics and then deputy head teacher.

She said: "I am very excited and feel highly privileged to be the next head teacher of Stewards Academy."

"Stewards is a very special place and I very much look forward to working with our amazing team of hard working and committed staff as their head teacher."

"As a mother-of-five, I know how important it is to parents that their children not only leave with excellent examination results, but their schooldays are also enjoyable and filled with a wealth of opportunities."

The announcement was made to students in the school hall during an assembly.

Last September the school welcomed Prince William and Princess Catherine.

The royal pair spoke with students about mental health as part of their work with charity Heads Together.

Man found not guilty of attack

A HARLOW man accused of shooting a father with a stolen shotgun has been found not guilty by a jury.

Shea Kenny, 26, of Abbeydale Close, was cleared of charges on Tuesday, March 14, after appearing before Chelmsford Crown Court.

He always denied the attack which allegedly took place at 12pm in Willowfield, Harlow on August 30, 2015.

Kenny denied the official charge of possessing a shotgun with intent to endanger life and wounding with intent to cause grievous bodily harm.

The trial started on Wednesday, March 8.

Knife threat to teenager

A TEENAGE boy was threatened at knifepoint in an attempted robbery.

Police officers are currently investigating the incident, which took place in Tillwicks Road in Harlow at 5pm on Saturday, March 18.

Two unknown suspects approached a 14-year-old boy and asked for money.

When the victim refused, one of the suspects, a man, produced a knife and threatened the boy but didn't steal anything.

The suspects then walked away and the victim was unharmed.

FIRST MP IS JUBILANT

STAN Newens, the first ever MP for Harlow New Town, celebrated the town's history as part of its 70th birthday celebrations.

The 87-year-old former politician, pictured, who is now chairman of Harlow Civic Society, spoke at Harlow Museum and Walled Gardens on Saturday.

"Harlow has been a huge success," he told the audience, "Providing quality homes for 80,000 people alongside the facilities needed for life in the community."

"Although Harlow is thought of as a new town mainly constructed in the second half of the 20th century, it is actually a very old town with a history stretching back to the Stone Age."

"An Iron Age temple on a hill, which later became a Roman temple, gave Harlow its name with health meaning a pagan temple and hlaw meaning a hill."

Mr Newens said the name Harlow came out of a combination of the two words.

He added: "The town became a market in the 13th century and it has a wealth of listed buildings including Harlowbury House, which is the second oldest inhabited home in Essex."

Mr Newens was MP for Epping from 1964 to 1970 and became the first for Harlow, which he served from 1974 until 1983. He later became an MEP for the region.

Books

Alongside his political work, Mr Newens has written books about the town's history and imparted some of his knowledge at the Harlow is 70 event.

He continued: "To tackle the huge housing problem at the end of the Second World War in 1945, the newly elected Labour government designated new towns beyond a greenbelt around London."

"One of the first, Harlow, was designated on March 25, 1947."

"Sir Frederick Gibberd was appointed architect-planner under the Harlow Development Corporation."

"He drafted a master plan to site industry along the railway in the north and planned housing areas with churches, schools, community centres, shops and all facilities, separated by green wedges so that all residents were near rural landscapes."

"Employers were invited in and employees were made eligible for houses. Beginning at Chippingfield, building operations moved slowly westwards to Great Parndon, providing homes with all mod cons for overcrowded and homeless people, principally from London."

Mr Newens added: "Princess Alexandra Hospital, Harlow Playhouse, a museum, sports facilities, playing fields and every conceivable amenity was provided to enhance the quality of life."

"We need now, however, to fight to preserve what was achieved, to seek to replace what has been lost, and further enhance the quality of our town."

Town's birthday kicks off with a special schools' steel pan concert

Icing on the cake as Harlow celebrates 70 years

By Charlotte Page and Will Mata

star@hertsessexnews.co.uk

FROM live music and afternoon tea to talks tapping into the town's history, Harlow officially celebrated its 70th birthday last weekend.

The celebrations were kicked off with a special steel pan concert held at the Latton Bush Centre on Friday, March 24.

Students from Stewards Academy, King Harold Academy, Mark Hall Academy, West Hatch High School and Burnt Mill Academy performed in front of a hall packed out with around 300 parents, family and friends in the hour long show.

Songs

Songs played varied from the likes of When The Saints Go Marching In to Feeling Hot, Hot, Hot.

The show was put together alongside the Essex Music Education Hub who have been working with students in steel pan workshops. Each school had just three hours worth of rehearsals.

The performance began once chairman of Harlow Council, Edna Stevens, cut the official birthday cake alongside vice chairman of the council, Sue Livings.

The cake, made by Harlow Council staff, celebrates Harlow's past and future including the town's sculptures, Pets' Corner, and the Harlow Enterprise Zone.

Mrs Stevens said: "It has been a great start to Harlow's 70th birthday celebrations but it doesn't stop there."

"More events led by the community are planned over the year with ideas from community groups coming in every day. Harlow is a town of opportunity with a wonderful community spirit and these are the things we want to capture as part of the celebrations."

On Saturday residents were invited to enjoy the sunshine and to continue the birthday celebrations at Herts and Essex Community Farm.

There were plenty of sweet treats on offer for people to enjoy including carrot cake, vanilla cupcakes and brownies as well as tea, coffee, and soup.

A children's treasure hunt was also organised to keep the little ones entertained with a prize being given to all those who took part.

Outdoor games were also on offer such as a giant connect four which was enjoyed by adults and children alike.

Older residents enjoyed afternoon tea and a dance in a celebration put on by charity Rainbow Services at Great Parndon Community Association Hall.

Passmores Academy students performed songs from the 1940s to 1960s, with Stephen Dunnett leading the singing.

Kelly Tarling, of Rainbow Services, said: "Everybody had a great time singing and dancing the afternoon away."

Feedback

"Feedback has been amazing and they all can't wait for the next event."

The celebratory weekend was rounded off on Sunday evening with another singsong, this time from amateur choir Double Up Your Spirit.

The group was celebrating an anniversary of their own, having now sung in Harlow pub, The Herald, for one year.

More events are planned to continue the 70th celebrations throughout the year, including Harlow Rock School performing in Harlow Town Park in May and a summer fair in The Stow in June.

The annual bonfire and firework night will also have a Harlow is 70 theme when it takes place in October.

Only four people go to opening of exhibition telling town's story

Education advisor attributes low turnout to wealth of other anniversary events

A CURATOR of Harlow Museum says he is happy with the launch of their Harlow Is 70 exhibition, despite just four people being there as it opened.

Gibberd's Gift, a collection of items focusing on the foundation of Harlow, opened at the Muskham Road centre on Saturday.

On the day which marked 70 years since the town's inception the gallery was one of several events to celebrate principal designer Sir Frederick Gibberd.

But just four people were there for the opening, and two of them were museum staff.

Jon O'Connor, education advisor for Harlow Museum and Walled Gardens (HMWG), suggested the lower turn-out might have been because of other events celebrating Harlow's anniversary.

History

He said: "On the same day there were a lot of events around Harlow. We were supporting the fact it is a nice piece of history in the town.

"We weren't expecting hordes."

More people came into HMWG later on the same day to see Stan Newens, Harlow's first MP, give a talk about the town's history.

Gibberd's Gift will be showing for the next three months and the museum hopes hundreds will take the opportunity to see the free exhibition.

Mr O'Connor said: "It went fine, it was not a flood. 45 to 50 people came through, and a lot came at the end of the day. It is not a bad number to start with. It is normal for a museum.

'WE WEREN'T EXPECTING HORDES': (l-r) Museum trustee Olly Lawson, visitor Seema Mangoo, assistant Zoe Forbes and Jon O'Connor

"I think 25 to 30 people came for Stan's talk. Robert Halfon, the Harlow MP, came in for a chat."

He added: "It is designed to open the same weekend as Harlow's 70th anniversary. There is a short biography of Gibberd and some of his main design accomplishments.

"He thought big and these were all major initiatives. It celebrates his life and accomplishments. There is a piece looking at his master plan and also photography (showing Harlow construction).

"I think a lot of people will be interested. I would welcome people to come and have a look."

HMWG is open Tuesdays to Saturdays from 10am to 4pm, but is closed on Wednesdays.

Park horror as beloved dog is ripped apart by three pit bulls

Yorkshire Terrier cross has to be put down after suffering terrible injuries

By Narbeh Minassian
narbeh.minassian@hertsessexnews.co.uk

A BELOVED dog that was "like a daughter" to her owners was killed by three pit bull dogs in a Harlow park.

Rosie Mace, 55, who lives in Scotland and was in the town last week to visit her terminally ill mother, was walking Daizi in The Briars with her daughter-in-law Nicole, 27, when three pit bulls attacked the Yorkshire Terrier and Jack Russell cross-breed on Sunday March 19.

Mrs Mace said the dogs were being walked by a boy of around 12 years old, who was being "dragged along" by one dog while the other two were without a leash.

Screams

The women tried to fight the dogs off and even jumped on nearby cars and threw Daizi in the air but could not prevent their pet from being "pulled apart".

Rosie's husband, Gavin, 55, said the screams could be heard from 100 yards away.

He said: "Normally my grandson Zach, who is three, goes on walks with Daizi but thankfully he wasn't this time.

ATTACKED: Daizi had to be put down

"If he were there he could have been ripped apart. The young boy walking the dogs was being dragged along and was distraught, he tried to stop the attack but his parents did not help and only commanded the dogs to stop after a little while."

He alleged the owner of the dogs told his wife "that's what animals do".

Following the attack, Mr Mace took Daizi to the vet and was told she was in a "very bad way" as she was bleeding badly, had her leg pulled from its socket and suffered severe nerve damage.

He was left with the choice to amputate or euthanize the dog. "She was not strong enough, I had to make the difficult decision to end her suffering," he said. "She was perfect and totally harmless, we just could not put her through that and there was no guarantee amputation would help."

Mr Mace has four grandchildren, three of which live in Scotland. Karl, four, had a particularly special bond with the dog.

"Karl has a rare chromosome disorder and he can't speak and has limited mobility and vision, only 27 people in the world have his condition, but he loved Daizi, they were like two little mates," he said.

Traumatised

"We now have to go and explain to the kids that she will never be coming back."

Mr Mace said he and his wife are so traumatised they might need counselling.

Mrs Mace said: "Daizi was such a harmless and very loving pet. She wasn't just a dog, she was our baby, our child, like a daughter.

"I don't know how I will tell our grandchildren, I know they will come around and look for her and wonder where she is.

"It's so lucky Zach was not with us, he had a cold that day but he could have been badly hurt."

PASSING MANOEUVRE:
Lorries overtaking uphill on the M11 could be a scene of the past

Father hurt in attack by group of youths

A HARLOW dad was left with head injuries after he was assaulted by a group of youths while playing football with his sons in a suspected hate crime.

Police have appealed for information about the incident in Broadley Road shortly after 6.30pm on Wednesday, March 22.

The 48-year-old man suffered minor injuries to his head.

The attack is being treated as a hate-related incident.

Witnesses or anyone with information are asked to contact Harlow police station on 101 or Crimestoppers anonymously on 0800 555 111.

A court case is still ongoing after the killing of Polish man Arek Jozwik in The Stow in Harlow last year, which was a suspected hate crime.

Meanwhile police are also appealing for witnesses after a teenager was stabbed while sitting on a park bench on Church Langley Way in Harlow at around 10.15pm on Tuesday, March 21.

The 17-year-old, from Chelmsford, was approached by two men, who pulled out a knife and assaulted him before cycling off. The victim was rushed to hospital with three cuts to his wrist.

Anyone with information is asked to contact Harlow CID on 101 or Crimestoppers anonymously on 0800 555 111.

'Why did M11 ban take so long' says ex-lorry driver

Overtaking restrictions on trucks now in force... six years after trial

By William Mata

william.mata@hertssexnews.co.uk

A FORMER lorry driver from Harlow cannot believe Highways England has taken so long to stop trucks overtaking on a risky stretch of the M11.

This week the authority is introducing a restriction to stop heavy goods vehicles (HGVs) overtaking during daytime hours on uphill sections of the road between junctions 8 (Bishop's Stortford) and 9 (A11).

This comes nearly six years after a successful 18-month trial was completed, in which time there have been a number of accidents involving HGVs.

A 74-year-old former trucker, from Harlow, said: "Years ago they put signs up there for a trial period saying lorries could not overtake.

"Then they disappeared. They took them down and we never heard anything more."

The driver, who retired nine years ago and wished not to be named, considers lorry overtaking on difficult sections to be dangerous for other motorists.

Atrocious

He added: "I was going up and down that road all the time and it is atrocious."

"The lorries can only do 56mph and they overtake. They go nowhere and it backs up. That is when there is trouble."

"The lorry drivers need to be educated. There needs to be signs up.

"They had some and they took them down, but now they are bringing them back. It is unbelievable."

Highways England undertook a trial between April 2010 and September 2011.

Steve Cox, Highways England project manager, said: "Our research has shown us that implementing lorry overtaking restrictions on uphill sections of the M11 between junctions 8 and 9 during the daytime would be beneficial to road users, reducing congestion and improving journey times."

The former lorry driver said the trouble is often caused by car drivers making over ambitious moves out of frustration to get past the slow lorries.

EMPTY SHOPS: We spot 13 unused units but chiefs say regeneration beckons

How long will town have a vacant look?

By William Mata
william.mata@hertsessexnews.co.uk

THE former BHS is one of 13 empty shops our photographer found on a walk around Harlow town centre.

Poundland, Marks & Spencer and Monsoon are just three retailers to pull their units in Broad Walk as Edinburgh Way continues to thrive. There are also vacant shop fronts in the Harvey Centre and the Market Square end of town.

However, town leaders have promised that change is on the way.

Last year the Star reported that developer Addington Capital is seeking planning permission to redevelop the shop unit that adjoins Broad Walk and West Gate.

Alex Wagstaff, from the firm, said: "This is an exciting opportunity to redevelop an area of Harlow which has been somewhat neglected over the years."

"We hope this new approach of building residential properties in the centre of Harlow will bring new activity and vibrancy to this part of the town centre."

Councillor Tony Durcan, Harlow Council portfolio holder for regeneration and enterprise, said: "While this may be early days, it could be the start of a new chapter that enables us to make significant improvement to the heart of our town."

Here are the 13 shops we found to be empty:

- 1. Former Poundland store in Broad Walk, Harlow
- 2. Unit in Broad Walk, Harlow
- 3. Shop in West Gate, Harlow
- 4. Shop in Broad Walk, Harlow
- 5. Former Papa's Cafe in Broad Walk, Harlow
- 6. Empty shop in the Harvey Centre, Harlow
- 7. BHS closed last summer in the Harvey Centre

- 8. This Market Square unit has been empty for some time
- 9. Another empty shop in the Harvey Centre, Harlow
- 10. A shop to let in Broad Walk, Harlow
- 11. Empty store upstairs in the Harvey Centre
- 12. Former Monsoon in Broad Walk, Harlow
- 13. Empty Harvey Centre store

NEW SERVICE: The St Clare Hospice family support team which has received help from Children in Need

Youngsters to get help after loss of loved ones thanks to Pudsey

ST Clare Hospice has launched a children's bereavement service following a grant from BBC Children in Need.

The Hastingwood-based charity will expand its family support service to help youngsters get through the loss of loved ones.

Joanna Petts, patient and family support team manager, said: "Grief is a unique experience, affecting every child differently.

"But the effect of losing your mum, dad, grandparent, aunt or uncle at a young age can impact a person for the rest of their lives.

"It is so important that we are able to offer specialist, individualised care to support the children and grandchildren of our patients, at the right time and in the right place, completing the circle of care."

Palliative

St Clare offers palliative and end of life care for those with terminal or life limiting illnesses.

As the charity needs more than £4 million a year to meet running costs, donations such as this are appreciated.

Ms Petts continued: "It has been a long-held ambition to provide a service dedicated to supporting children and young people experiencing bereavement.

"We are delighted to have secured the funding to launch this dedicated children's bereavement service.

"We will now be able to offer a truly holistic service for every patient and their whole circle of family and loved ones."

FA probe claim that footballer wielded a knife

Player kicked out of club after incident

By Piers Meyler

observer@hertsessexnews.co.uk

THE FA is investigating allegations that a non-league match was abandoned after a player ran from the pitch and returned brandishing a knife.

The shocking scenes were swiftly condemned.

A Sawbridgeworth Town FC player became embroiled in an angry row with a visiting Clapton fan in the Essex Senior League match on Saturday.

"It was a shocking incident," said one supporter who was at the club's Crofters ground.

"The incident happened in injury time and the ref immediately abandoned the game.

"There was some sort of altercation with the Clapton fans - some people said the player was angry after beer was thrown.

"But the Sawbridgeworth player left the pitch and he went to the dressing room or his car and returned with a knife.

"Luckily people managed to finally calm the situation down."

Sawbridgeworth Town is a respected family club and officials were shocked by the incident. They immediately kicked the player out of the club and he will not be playing for them again.

Peter Dudley, a non-league website writer who was at the match, said: "It was a very shocking few minutes and it's not something you should see in any walk of life, let alone football.

Hearing

"The player in question has since been released by Sawbo but a county disciplinary hearing now awaits both sides to determine what happens to the clubs, the player in question and the outcome of the result of this contest.

"So a sad and shocking end to the contest, no doubt more will be said in the coming weeks."

Herts FA will hold an inquiry into the incident.

A spokesman said: "There are hundreds of grassroots football games played in Hertfordshire every week, and we take all reports of violent, aggressive and/or threatening behaviour in the county's football community very seriously.

"Following a thorough investigation of this incident, any individuals found guilty of improper conduct will receive sanctions that may include an immediate suspension from all football, in addition to a potential criminal charge."

Michelle Dorling, secretary of the Essex Senior League, said of the incident: "Whilst it is under investigation by the parent county FA, we are unable to go into detail. However, we can confirm the club concerned have contacted the league to cancel the player's registration.

"The incident has been reported to the league by the match officials and follow the due process through the disciplinary processes."

LONDON TERROR ATTACK: MP tells of experience during violent incident

Police chief tells county to remain 'resilient'

ESSEX Police have urged communities in the county to remain resilient, compassionate and supportive, following the attacks in London that left five people dead and many more injured.

Acting Assistant Chief Constable Andy Prophet has promised extra policing throughout the county, including additional armed officers and other specialist resources.

Acting Assistant Chief Constable Andy Prophet said after the incident on Westminster Bridge and outside the Houses of Parliament: "On behalf of Essex Police I want to offer the thoughts and prayers of the entire force to members of the public killed, injured or affected by the incident in London [last Wednesday].

"We of course also join our colleagues in the Metropolitan Police Service in grief for the loss of a serving officer.

"This has been declared a terrorist incident in London and is being investigated by the Metropolitan Police Counter Terrorism Command.

Visible

"In Essex until further notice, there will be increased visible police patrol including additional armed officers and other specialist resources.

"I urge the public to be alert but not alarmed.

"Police forces and our partners are doing everything we can to help protect the security of our citizens, public institutions, critical national infrastructure, and businesses and places.

"This is a time for communities in Essex to remain resilient, compassionate and supportive of each other.

"Should anyone have any concerns or see anything suspicious I would urge them to report it immediately by calling 101 or 999 in an emergency."

AS IT HAPPENED:
Police respond to the Westminster attack

'There was shouting, and I think I heard gunshots'

By William Mata

william.mata@hertsessexnews.co.uk

ROBERT Halfon has described his "scary," and "surreal," experience of being in the House of Commons during the Westminster attack.

The Harlow MP spent more than seven hours in and around the Commons chamber after the suspected terrorist incident on Wednesday (March 22) which has now claimed the lives of five people.

Conservative Mr Halfon thanked town residents for supportive messages on a day when political differences were put aside.

He said: "I was voting at around 2.30pm and I was about to go back to my office.

"They locked the doors and said

'you can't go out because there has been a security risk', so we went back in.

"There was a lot of people shouting, and I think I heard gun shots.

"That was the scariest part.

"One MP shouts to get away from the window and they say we will have to be in the chamber for quite a while.

Lobbies

"We were in the chamber or voting lobbies until 9pm. It was incredible.

"I was sitting on the Labour benches talking to Labour MPs. It was surreal."

A 4X4 driver by Khalid Masood mowed down pedestrians on Westminster Bridge before crashing near the Houses of Parliament.

He stabbed PC Keith Palmer

before being shot by an armed security guard. Both Masood and PC Palmer later died.

Police said at least 50 people were injured and two are still in a critical condition.

Mr Halfon said: "I found out what had happened and it was horrific.

"They had to go through every last nook and cranny to make sure there was no one else.

"I was worried

for my office staff.

"The police came rushing down there, underneath the first floor, and said to get out.

"They were taken to Westminster Abbey. They were waiting until 9pm.

"Every 40 minutes there would be an announcement."

Mr Halfon said he witnessed the best and worst of humanity and praised the actions of the police.

"The kindness of the police was incredible," he continued.

"I was texting family about what was going on. I always thought this was going to happen someday. I have been lucky.

"Not everyone is happy with us (the Government) but there have been lots of messages from Harlow asking if I am safe. It is really heartening and I am touched."

Prevail

He added: "Theresa May said our values will prevail.

"I love Parliament, it is a very special place. I think it is incredible how it responds to this kind of thing.

"People want to attack our democracy but Parliament always responds.

"You can see the worst but you can also see the best.

"Everyone came together. We stand as the greatest Parliament in the world."

GHOST IN THE SHELL (12A)

Based on the cult Japanese manga of the same title, Ghost In The Shell is an action-packed futuristic thriller directed by Rupert Sanders, set in a world where an elusive hacker is wreaking havoc by leaping into the minds of unsuspecting strangers.

The year is 2029 and cyborg counter-cyberterrorist field commander The Major (Scarlett Johansson, pictured) leads her team, Public Security Section 9, under the aegis of Chief Daisuke Aramaki (Takeshi Kitano). Her squad includes Batou (Pilou Asbaek), Togusa (Chin Han) and Ishikawa (Lazarus Ratuere). They are the guardians of a world reliant on the artificial technology produced by Hanka Robotics, and join The Major in her high octane battles with cyberterrorists including Kuze (Michael Pitt), who seeks to exploit loopholes for nefarious gain. A new adversary runs amok and The Major and her cohorts pool their resources to unmask the shadowy figures behind the conspiracy.

MAN DOWN (15)

Actor Shia LaBeouf reunites with filmmaker Dito Montiel, who directed him to critical acclaim in A Guide To Recognizing Your Saints, for this harrowing drama about a US marine struck down by post-traumatic stress disorder (PTSD). Gabriel Drummer (LaBeouf) prepares to say goodbye to his wife Natalie (Kate Mara) and young son Jonathan (Charlie Shotwell) in order to serve his country in Afghanistan. Gabriel enlists with pride and fights alongside good friend Devin Roberts (Jai Courtney). A tragic incident on the battlefield shakes Gabriel to the core and he makes a discovery about his family life that threatens to tear everything apart. His superior Captain Peyton (Gary Oldman) interviews Gabriel to ascertain whether he is fit to return to active service. Some time later, Gabriel embarks on a frantic search with Devin for his kidnapped son in a post-apocalyptic wasteland. An enigmatic loner called Charles (Clifton Collins Jr) might know Jonathan's location so the two Marines use extreme force to extract the information they need.

DON'T KNOCK TWICE (15)

Talented sculptor Jess (Katee Sackhoff) was once afflicted with a substance abuse addiction that wrecked her personal relationships. She shamefully neglected her daughter Chloe (Lucy Boynton), who was ushered into care while Jess confronted her demons with the financial backing of her wealthy lawyer husband, Ben (Javier Botet). Several years later, with Chloe now a teenager, Jess attempts to rebuild bridges and is crestfallen when an embittered Chloe rebuffs her maternal advances. Their relationship shifts dramatically after Chloe is persuaded by her boyfriend Danny (Jordan Bolger) to knock twice on the door of a local house, which is rumoured to be haunted by a witch. Soon after, Danny is abducted by a malevolent spirit and Chloe turns in desperation to Jess to help her rescue her beau and defeat the gnarly croone.

Triggy-happy hotheads and snappy dialogue are the prime concerns of Ben Wheatley and Amy Jump's action thriller Free Fire

Guns and poses

Essex-born filmmaker Ben Wheatley gets into a Reservoir Dogs groove with this giddily entertaining shoot-out set in a 1978 Boston warehouse that draws blood with breathless action sequences as well as verbal grenades.

The trigger-happy free-for-all becomes wearisome before the final bullet reaches its intended target, and sinewy subplots to connect characters sometimes feel contrived, but as an exercise in controlled mayhem, Free Fire hits more than it misses.

Wheatley and co-writer Amy Jump have keen ears for snappy dialogue, whether it be one gunman petulantly refusing to lay down his weapon – “It’s too late, I’ve been insulted!” – or another thug, high on heroin to dull the pain of a swollen black eye, likening his appearance to someone who has recently enjoyed sexual congress with “a reluctant panda bear”.

FREE FIRE (15) ★★★★★

A rich vein of jet black humour courses beneath the surface of each exchange of gunfire and the script delights in upending gender stereotypes by casting Oscar winner Brie Larson as the solitary woman in a hyperviolent world of testosterone-crazed fools.

“We can’t all be nice girls,” she snarls at one associate, aiming her revolver squarely between his terror-filled eyes.

Chris (Cillian Murphy) and fellow Irishman Frank (Michael Smiley) need to source several cases of M16 rifles to arm their IRA brethren.

They head to an abandoned warehouse to complete a deal flanked by hired muscle Bernie (Enzo Cilenti) and Stevo (Sam Riley), under the escort of suave American middle man Ord (Armie Hammer) and his sassy associate, Justine (Larson).

The suppliers are emotionally volatile South African dealer Vernon (Sharlto Copley) and his Black Panther associate Martin (Babou Ceesay), who have drafted in two stooges – Harry (Jack Reynor) and Gordon (Noah Taylor) – to even the numbers.

The exchange goes sour when Vernon attempts to palm off AR-70 assault rifles in place of the promised weapons.

Tempers fray and Justine deflects sexist barbs aimed to undermine her position.

“I’m IIFM – in it for myself,” she calmly reminds both sides.

When bullets fly as a result of an unfortunate personal connection, fragile alliances disintegrate, rivalries resurface and Vernon loses his slender grasp on reality.

“He was misdiagnosed as a child genius and never got over it,” wearily notes Justine.

Free Fire sets out its action-oriented intentions, reducing most of the cast to the shuffling wounded, who crawl around the warehouse floor with blood seeping from bullet wounds as they search for an exit from the mayhem (other than an early grave).

Copley overacts with wild abandon, largely to comic effect, while Murphy and Larson spark a simmering on-screen chemistry that thankfully never boils over into a superfluous dalliance.

The film’s enduring romance is between hot-headed men and their loaded weapons.

Unlike many of the characters, that love never dies.

Smurfs lacking in substance and sophistication

THE SMURFS: LOST VILLAGE (U) ★★★★★

A SMURF in need is a Smurf indeed in director Kelly Asbury’s family-friendly comedy, which reboots the misadventures of the cute blue creatures created by Belgian illustrator Peyo.

The Smurfs: Lost Village abandons the uneasy conflation of live action and digital trickery, which dogged previous Smurf feature films, and settles on computer animation to render the colour-saturated escapades of Papa Smurf and his three inch tall kin.

Asbury’s picture adopts a strongly female-centric storyline in the hope of mimicking the success of Disney’s Frozen, Zootropolis, Finding Dory and Moana, but muddles its core message of female empowerment and independence.

On the one hand, Stacey

Harman and Pamela Ribon’s simplistic script repeatedly emphasises that a young woman isn’t handcuffed to her past. She will be judged by her kind words and sensitive deeds.

Yet for each rallying cry to girls to boldly shape their destiny, the film also fails to elegantly articulate the internal conflict of heroine Smurfette and frequently relies on male protagonists to move the narrative on.

Placed side by side with yesteryear’s joy-filled Trolls and its infectious Oscar nominated soundtrack, The Smurfs: Lost Village feels light on substance, sophistication and emotional complexity.

Humour is skewed towards the very young, and joke-starved adults may be mimicking the actions of Sleepy Smurf or Grouchy Smurf before the end credits roll.

SOUND OUT

Deep Purple reign

Is the end in sight for Deep Purple? Drummer Ian Paice tells MARION McMULLEN it will happen one day, but the British heavy metal band are determined to go out rocking

DEEP Purple had to cancel two dates in Sweden last year after drummer Ian Paice suffered a mini stroke, but the health scare is not stopping him from rocking all over the world... again.

The heavy metal legends have a new album out and Ian and bandmates Ian Gillan, Roger Glover, Steve Morse and Don Airey are planning to hit the road for the Long Goodbye Tour.

"We've been breaking rules and barriers for nearly 50 years," says Ian gleefully. "They are there to be broken. In the 1960s there was no rule book. We got rid of it, threw it right out of the window, and did what we wanted to do. No rules or regulations. It was all fair game."

It has led to them selling more than 100 million albums and making it into the Guinness Book Of Records in the 1970s for being the loudest band on the planet. They have also been credited with spawning heavy metal music along with Black Sabbath and Led Zeppelin.

There have been band changes and reunions along the way and an induction into the Rock and Roll Hall of Fame in 2016.

Their 20th studio album, inFinite, comes out next month and Ian describes it as "a wonderful mix of free form and real ideas."

He says: "We recorded it very quickly with producer Bob Ezrin. Once he got everyone into the studio, everything slotted into place. All we had to do was to come up with ideas. There's no point in doing 15 to 20 takes."

The album also includes a cover version of Roadhouse Blues by The Doors. "We did a Jerry Lee Lewis track on the last album," explains the 68-year-old drummer. "It was something that was part of our youth, back to the beginning of rock 'n' roll. We worked on the arrangement of Roadhouse Blues and Ian Gillan's assistant downloaded the words from the internet. In 30 minutes we had it done. We all knew the song and really liked it and decided to include it on the album. Like I said, no rules. There's no hidden meaning. It's just five guys saying 'Let's do this'."

Deep Purple will mark half a century of making music next year and show little sign of slowing down. The world tour is titled The Long Goodbye, but Ian says the name should not be taken at face value.

"There's the realisation that that day is over the horizon somewhere when we don't want to do it any more or can't do it anymore. We do realise that, but no-one wants to stop. We are having so much fun."

"Realistically this could be the last full-on tour of the world, but it could take us three years to do." He laughs: "It could keep us busy for the next several years and there is wriggle room after that. At the end of the day, no-one has said this is the last record. Honestly, no-one has said it."

Ian was 15 when his dad gave him and presented him with his first drum kit to stop him tapping on the furniture.

"My father was a musician, a piano player, with dance bands and he encouraged me to go this route. I didn't expect anything. I just enjoyed it," remembers Ian.

"My first gigs were with him doing dances like waltzes and quicksteps, but I was a 15-year-old kid and it was not enough so I joined a local band as well and played clubs and little bars."

"That was the great thing then. Everywhere had a live venue and I was playing every Thursday, Friday and Saturday night. I turned professional two years later when I was 17 and was then doing seven shows a week. By the time I was 19 I was good enough to join Deep Purple."

He adds: "I've done a lot over the last 50 years, but they fade into a greyness over time. The most important thing before Purple was when I played three weeks at the Star Club in Hamburg in 1966 and met Ritchie Blackmore."

"I went back to England and Ritchie stayed in Hamburg, but when he returned he was holding auditions and the singer in my band applied for a job. Ritchie asked him 'Have you still got the drummer? Good, bring him along.'"

"They already had a guy pencilled in for the drumming job and sneakily got him out of the house to buy some cigarettes or something, and I jumped on this drum kit and stole his gig. Has he ever forgiven me? Probably not."

Deep Purple has taken Ian all over the world and his drumming has inspired generations of musicians.

"When we started, we did tours that lasted 12, 13 and even 14 weeks. There's the adrenalin buzz when you are performing, especially when you are kids. It never goes away. It certainly hasn't for me. I'm still doing something I love."

He explains: "For two hours on stage you can be someone totally untouchable. You are doing the thing you love and no-one can top that. But when you get off stage, you have to return to normality. If you convince yourself that this Disneyland is real 24 hours a day seven days a week, well then, you'll go mad and you'll make the wrong decisions."

Deep Purple concerts now attract a wide audience eager to hear hits like Smoke On The Water and Black Night.

"Never deny your history," points out Ian. "Those pieces of music are important to people and we want to play them. A good song is always a good song even if it was written yesterday or 100 years ago. If it's good, the quality will shine through. I remember French TV wanted us to play Smoke On The Water one time, but it was a small studio so we rented very small equipment and did a jazz version. It's a great piece of music. Check it out on YouTube under French jazz."

He smiles "We're having fun and we've still got a lot left. Maybe we won't wait so long for the next album."

■ DEEP Purple's album inFinite is released on April 7 and the band will be touring in November. Go to deeppurple.com for further details.

ALBUM REVIEWS

A COMPANION piece to last year's Ruminations, this release sees those 10 sparse tracks and seven more fleshed out by an all-star backing cast of The Felice Brothers and drummer/co-producer Jim Keltner – the latter has played with Neil Young, Bob Dylan and John Lennon among others.

Alcohol abuse, introspection and damaging insomnia are recurring themes and yet much of the album has a soaring sound.

The darkness remains, but the reworked set casts light upon some of Oberst's strongest songs in some time.

THE MAVERICKS - BRAND NEW DAY

IF you had to put a label on The Mavericks, then 'dance band' would be more suitable than 'country'.

The accordion-drenched Brand New Day follows the same splendidly wayward path as their previous album, Mono, veering from the Roy Orbison-like title track and old-timey Goodnight Waltz to the early ska of I Think Of You, Sixties go-go pop of Easy As It Seems and Damned (If You Do), where mariachi trumpets duke it out with rock guitars.

It's all infectiously good-natured, expertly played and beautifully sung.

JAMES BLUNT - THE AFTERLOVE

"If you thought 2016 was bad," tweeted self-effacing popstar James Blunt last year. "I'm releasing an album in 2017". The You're Beautiful singer is undoubtedly one of the wittiest stars of social media, but does this transpire to musical ability?

For this, his pal Ed Sheeran has penned some the tracks, while a host of other time-served songwriters also chipped in.

The result is polished but uninspiring. Unlike his Twitter feed – it's far from great.

WIRE - SILVER/LEAD

CELEBRATING 40 years in the business, post-punk experimenters Wire show no signs of either slowing down or mellowing. Never ones to trade on former glories and Silver/Lead sees them pushing themselves again.

This collection may not have the rough edges of their early days, but it's full of angular tunes and lyrics with bite.

Short Elevated Period is a fast and furious alt-pop anthem in the making, guitars thrashing away, while the lyrics hint at sorrow and heartbreak.

Musically, this record spans indie, art rock, psychedelia and cinematic synth, but there's a fierce intelligence and sinewy energy underlying it all.

Some bands lose their way early on, Wire keep on getting stronger and stronger.

SPOTLIGHT

It's almost as if satire is redundant, politicians are doing my job for me...

Does Brexit and Donald Trump's election as US president make for interesting times?

YOU wake to find Trump in the White House, Nigel Farage being talked about as a UK ambassador and Boris Johnson as Foreign Secretary. (Laughs) Maybe we should just not go to sleep. Bad things happen at night.

Your new show, Partly Political, is your first tour in seven years and was prompted by a sell-out run of Rory Bremner Meets... at the Edinburgh Fringe last August. What can audiences expect?

THE first half is me doing stand-up and the second half is more free-form, with a political guest I'll interview and, possibly, a Q&A. I am joined by the brilliant (fellow impressionist) Jan Ravens. The set-up with Jan is that I'll interview her in character and then I'll wrap up the show at the end.

Will you be updating the show on tour?

POLITICS are so fluid at the moment that the show is almost a work in progress. There will be a significant element that will change as the tour goes on.

How would you describe yourself?

AS a stand-up chameleon. I will be introducing new characters on tour – Trump and Farage, obviously – but

Has Donald Trump made a big impression on Rory Bremner? MARION MCMULLEN finds out why the comedy favourite is taking the US president and Farage on tour in new show Partly Political also Louis Walsh and Jeremy Corbyn. The female characters, including Theresa May and Hillary Clinton, will be supplied by Jan.

Did Trump's election, rather than the female Hillary Clinton, come as some relief in impersonation terms?

(LAUGHS) He's a bit of a mixed blessing, isn't he? On one hand he is this big character who says all these things that make you seriously fear for what will happen, but on the other hand the comedian in me says there's four years of mileage in him. It's almost as if satire is redundant – politicians are doing my job for me. But what I hope I do is try to make sense of things and rediscover the truth in this post-truth era. I want us to engage with what's going on, but be entertaining at the same time.

How do you think satire has changed over the years?

IN the 1960s it was about breaking down that deference to the political class. The 70s was about the Labour government, the 80s was about Thatcher, strikes and the Cold War and in the late 90s it was Blair.

During the Coalition, with David Cameron and Nick Clegg, big characters were thin on the ground and satire all but disappeared from TV, but now the grotesques are back – with Trump, Boris and Farage. Volatility in politics is challenging for a satirist, and it's an exciting time for me.

You have never revealed the way you vote. Are you careful to not allow your political views to creep into your work?

I'VE always been very careful not to align myself with any party or movement because, once you do, you allow people to try to pigeon-hole whatever you say. But I do think people in the centre ground feel homeless at the moment, and there's a danger that this country is becoming more polarised between those who voted Brexit and those who didn't.

Are you afraid your show may be preaching to the converted?

THERE is an element of that in as much as your audience is self-selecting but, of course, I welcome people who don't share my views. Part of what you do as a comedian is present your view of the world and invite people to share it but, instead of voting, they laugh. Their laughter is in a sense a sign that you have captured – or indeed released – something for them, regardless of how they vote.

You are married to sculptor Tessa Campbell Fraser and you and your teenage daughters, Ava and Lila, divide your time between the Cotswolds and the Scottish Borders. Is it hard being away from home?

ONE of the things I loved about doing the show at Edinburgh is I could go back to my hotel room and just think, or write because in real life, as it were, I don't always have much time to think, to concentrate on just one thing.

On a serious note, you suspected a few years ago that you had the behavioural condition attention deficit hyperactivity disorder (ADHD) as a child. What was it like when the diagnosis was confirmed in a BBC 2 documentary on the subject?

IT'S an important subject and a big cause of mine. There are half a million children with ADHD in this country and families are under enormous pressure because they are permanently restless.

His musical Come Dancing won the Mobius Award for best Off-West End production in 2009 and Sunny Afternoon won four Olivier Awards.

■ A COMEDY romp of East meets West is on offer with the national theatre tour of Bring On The Bollywood.

The Bollywood dance theatre extravaganza is created by Samir Bhamra and inspired by classic Indian cinema. It follows the fortunes of a London-based doctor who returns to India for a family wedding. The tour begins on May 6 and runs until the end of August. Go to phizzical.com for details.

FOOD & DRINK

A Master stroke

INGREDIENTS

Cornbread:

100ml whole milk
240ml buttermilk
3 eggs
165g sweetcorn kernels (defrosted or from a cob)
100g plain flour
180g fine polenta
30g soft brown sugar
1tsp fine salt
1tbsp baking powder
80g butter
3 spring onions, halved and finely sliced

For the goat's cheese:

250g soft goat's cheese
75ml whole milk
25ml olive oil
Salt and pepper

For the chipotle honey butter:

125g butter
35g chipotle in adobo, chopped (souschef.co.uk, Amazon and Waitrose)
50g honey
Squeeze of lime juice
Salt

To serve:

Butter, to fry, 4 eggs, large handful of rocket dressed with oil and lime juice

METHOD

1. Preheat the oven to 180C/Gas mark 4 and butter a 900g loaf tin.
2. Blend together the milk, buttermilk, eggs and 100g of sweetcorn. Put the flour, polenta, sugar, salt and baking powder into a large bowl and whisk well to combine. Melt the butter in a pan and add to the dry ingredients, along with the egg mixture, spring onions and remaining sweetcorn. Mix briefly to bring it together.

CHEESE AND HONEY
BUTTER (SERVES FOUR)

3. Pour the mixture into the prepared tin and bake for 45 minutes, or until an inserted skewer comes out clean. Allow to cool in the tin for 30 minutes then place on wire rack.
4. Blitz the goat's cheese, milk and olive oil with a blender, seasoning with salt and pepper. It should be light and fluffy.

5. Then melt the butter in a pan, add the chipotle and honey and whisk together. Season with lime juice and salt.

6. Cut the bread into slices and fry in a little butter to warm. Fry the eggs until crisp.
7. Serve the bread with one to two heaped tablespoons of the goat's cheese, a handful of dressed rocket, a fried egg and drizzle of the honey butter.

YOU will find a brachiosaurus moseying through an asparagus forest, a tiger surveying a field of Szechuan peppers, and a duck bobbing about with a load of cherry tomatoes in Thomasina Miers' new recipe collection, Home Cook.

And they all look so happy. "You can tell I was pregnant when I was making it, can't you?!" the Cheltenham-born chef and restaurateur yelps with a laugh. "Oh my God, we had so much fun! The designer to begin with was like, 'What are you doing with all the toys? Get them out!'"

Fortunately the designer caved in, and plastic toys dotting the pages included, Thomasina's fifth book is all clean lines and straightforward recipes. It pops with colour and is bolstered by Mexican influences – this is, after all, the woman who co-founded popular restaurant chain, Wahaca, which is now in its 10th year of taco slinging.

At its core though, Home Cook is a reflection of "how we eat at home", says Thomasina, 41, and how having three small children and a restaurant empire affects that.

"The food I cook now is very different to the food I cooked 20 years ago, when I had all the time in the world," she explains. "I'm a working mother, who comes home late sometimes and just has to get food out on the table, but equally, I want to feed my family good food."

The collection of 300-odd recipes, she says, is also a "guilt-free joyous approach to food", in reaction to "all this neurosis about eating and what not to eat" that currently abounds.

"Healthy eating has become such a loaded, almost toxic

Thomasina Miers is back from maternity leave with a third baby and a new book. The former MasterChef champ and Mexican food pioneer talks home-cooking and so-called 'healthy eating' with ELLA WALKER subject," says Thomasina. "I grew up as a teenager full of hang-ups about food and always dieting, and it's such a bad way to live your life. Over the years, I've developed – I never say no to anything."

"The moment I say to myself, 'I won't do that', that's the first thing I want to do."

You have to work out what works for you, rather than letting trends and aspirational Instagram posts dictate your diet, she explains.

"Everybody's bodies are different; we all react to different ingredients in different ways, so it's nonsense to say one diet can be suitable for thousands of people, it doesn't work that way. It's about adapting your own likes and dislikes and eating the way that's right for you, and having fun with it.

"Basically, if you're cooking a bit from scratch at home, which you can do affordably and easily, then you're going to be eating healthily, and if you eat a few doughnuts along the way, it doesn't really matter."

Thomasina won MasterChef in 2005 and still appears on the series as a guest judge, which she says is "much more relaxing – although it brings all the memories back. It's amazing how food's moved on, so occasionally I just want to be doing it again, knowing what I know now."

Her advice for the latest crop of amateur chefs entering the MasterChef kitchen is: "Cook from your heart. The second you try and get too clever with cooking, you're found out pretty quickly. Food is a very sincere occupation, and a lack of sincerity shines out. You've got to cook from your heart and soul – which is what makes MasterChef so compelling, actually, seeing people putting themselves on the line."

Had she not wowed MasterChef hosts John Torode and Gregg Wallace, Thomasina is convinced she'd still be "in a similar place" to where she is now.

"I don't think MasterChef waves a magic wand over your career," she muses. "It definitely gave me the confidence to get into a kitchen and start cooking, but, like any reality show, it doesn't make your life, you have to make your life yourself."

THE best way to discover which wines you might enjoy is by going to a wine tasting. Sometimes it's a challenge to understand wine labels let alone the wines – but dipping in and out of wines at a tasting is a really good way to feel your way through. I've just been to a Burgundy tasting hosted by The Wine Society and several winemakers and growers were there, sharing their knowledge. Here's three whites I enjoyed:

Samuel Billaud Chablis Les Grands Terroirs (£15.50, 12.5% abv). This was the Number One wine in the tasting booklet but it was at the back of the room.

I headed through the glass-clasping throng of people, casting needy eyes sideways as I passed other wines on the way. Samuel Billaud was pouring his wines and he'd already gathered a little crowd debating which they preferred. This chablis is an early favourite of mine; it is an unoaked chardonnay with the grapes sourced from three vineyards; with typical crisp apple aromas but with a nod to something a bit softer; to taste, it was upright and steely with a good acidic backbone.

RAISE A GLASS

WITH JANE CLARE

Domaine Pataille, Marsannay Blanc 2014 (£19.50, 13% abv).

Mmmm. Toast; and I sensed grilled pineapple aromas too. I'm not sure anyone else did but that's why wine is so interesting. The aromas also included pears and a nutty creaminess; to taste, this chardonnay from the Côte d'Or shone with more pears, apples and a thrill of elegance. Winemaker Sylvain Pataille also served a Marsannay rosé fleur de pinot, a pinot noir rosé matured for a year in oak. Delicious.

Husband and wife Sylvie and Frédéric Burrier were positioned on the last table but their wines weren't last in my pecking order. They poured some delightful whites; I adored the pears and spice of Chateau de Beauregard Saint-Veran En Faux (£13.95, 13% abv), but as I write, it is sold out on the society's website but I'll be seeking out the next vintage. Equally moreish was

Joseph Burrier, Viré-clessé Quintaine 2014 (£13.95, 13% abv), left, which was citrusy, creamy and with lots of freshness. Find all the wines at winesociety.com

■ ALDI is also doing its bit to remove mystique around French wines.

It's launching two wines which focus on a couple of regions which otherwise might slip under an Aldi shopper's radar – The Forgotten One Haut Poitou 2016 (£6.99, 12% abv) is a sauvignon blanc and The Forgotten One Cahors (£6.99, 12.5% abv) which is a malbec – you may think malbec is from Argentina but France is its birthplace.

Aldi is also adding a Pardon My French range, all at £4.99, designed to make French wine more accessible together with fun labels to catch the eye.

Pardon My French Cotes de Gascogne 2016 (11.5% abv) is a citrus-bright white blend; Pardon My French Ventoux (13.5% abv) is ruby red and very fruity; Pardon My French Minervois (13% abv) is full of red fruits; and Pardon My French Fitou (13% abv), left, says woody hedgerow fruit.

Aldi is also launching a new "green" collection which includes a tropically-tasty organic Prosecco for £7.99.

■ All of these wines will be in store from April 4.

INGREDIENTS

For the fish:

1 whole sea bass
A few lime leaves (optional)
A few slices of lime (optional)
100ml water, fish or veg stock
Lime wedges, to serve
Coconut rice, to serve
Steamed pak choi, to serve
1tbsp sesame oil, toasted

For the Thai paste:

2 star anise
Half a cinnamon stick
1tbsp black peppercorn
Thumb-sized piece of fresh galangal, peeled and sliced (available from Sainsbury's)
Thumb-sized piece of fresh ginger, peeled and sliced
4 garlic cloves, bashed to remove the skin
3 banana shallots, chopped
3 lemon grass sticks, chopped, outer layer set aside
6-8 bird's eye chillies
2tbsp fish sauce
Juice of 2-3 limes
2tbsp demerara sugar
Large bunch of coriander, leaves and stalks chopped separately
1 x 400ml can of coconut milk
Salt

METHOD

1. First make the Thai paste:

Grind the spices and put in a food processor with the galangal, ginger, garlic, shallots, lemon grass (reserving the outer layers), fish sauce, lime juice and sugar. Blitz to a rough paste. 2. Add the chopped coriander stalks and coconut milk to the paste with half a teaspoon of salt and blitz again until combined. Taste the paste and add more chillies (when the paste is baked, the chilli heat will reduce dramatically). 3. Preheat the oven to 200C/ Gas mark 6. Lay out the bass in a deep roasting tin, large enough to fit it comfortably.

A FISHY FEAST

THAI GREEN SEA BASS WITH GALANGAL, LEMON GRASS AND COCONUT (SERVES SIX)

Make a few slashes in both sides of the body and cover with enough paste inside and out so it is well coated. Stuff the inside cavity with the lime leaves, lemon grass outer layers and slices of lime if using. Mix the rest of the paste with the water or stock and pour into the tin. Bake for 25-30 minutes, or until a thin metal skewer can slide easily all the way into the thickest part of the fish. 4. Scatter with chopped coriander leaves and serve with lime wedges, coconut rice and some steamed pak choi laced with one tablespoon of toasted sesame oil.

For the cake:

380g butter, plus extra for the tins
380g dark chocolate (70% cocoa solids), chopped
380g caster sugar
2 small pinches ground cinnamon
Several large pinches of salt
200g plain flour
6 eggs, beaten

For the topping:

4 Mars bars
100ml whole milk
3 tbsp golden syrup
90g dark chocolate (70% cocoa solids), chopped
500ml double cream
3 Flakes, chopped into 2cm lengths
2 packets of Rolos
1 large packet of Peanut M&Ms (optional)
Edible glitter

METHOD

1. Preheat the oven to 190C/ Gas Mark 5 and butter and line the base of two 20cm non-stick cake tins. 2. Melt the butter in a medium pan over a low heat; once melted, stir in the chocolate, being careful not to burn it. When the mixture becomes smooth velvet, add the sugar, cinnamon and salt. Stir until the sugar has dissolved, then slowly sift in the flour, stirring to combine. Beat the eggs into the chocolate mixture a little at a time until fully incorporated. 3. Pour into the prepared tins and bake for 30-40 minutes until the outside is dark and delicious looking and a skewer comes out clean. Leave to cool in the tins for 15 minutes before removing to a cooling rack. 4. Meanwhile chop up the

Mars Bars and melt with the milk, syrup, dark chocolate and 50ml of the double cream. Whip the rest of the cream until it just holds its shape. 5. Sandwich the cooked cakes together with the whipped cream and pour over the Mars Bar sauce. Scatter the various chocolates and the glitter on top. Serve.

STYLE GUIDE

Clash in on spring's hot hues

Sosandar Mando cold shoulder blouse £49, bright blue crop wide leg split trousers £49, sosandar.com

WHAT colour clothing are you wearing right now? If the answer is black, blue or grey, you're in good company, as 23% of Brits are most likely to wear monochrome on a daily basis.

The survey, by Currys PC World to mark its 'Stay Colourful' pop-up, also found 16% of us avoid vivid hues because we're scared of standing out.

Well, it's time to face those fears, because this season is all about brights – and not just one shade either. 'Conscious clashing' brings together two unexpected shades that SHOULDN'T really work, but totally do. These are the pigment pairings to shake up your spring wardrobe...

TOMATO RED AND BLUE

SCARLET and nautical navy have made a chic match for centuries, but the modern take on this twosome involves zingy orangey-red and duck egg blue.

It's a combo

Victoria Beckham has championed (both on the catwalk and in her own wardrobe), so who are we to argue?

Take your cue from VB and let the red dominate, adding a splash of cerulean with accessories, or a long-sleeved top worn under a dress.

SimplyBe Lovedrobe frilled sleeve red jumpsuit £55, simplybe.co.uk

PINK AND NAVY

PINK has been declared the colour of SS17, but what to wear it with?

Mix things up by styling sporty bubblegum pink separates with more refined pieces in deepest navy – a hoodie with tailored trousers, for instance, or a deconstructed shirt with a slouchy midi skirt.

MUSTARD AND COBALT

SOME shades that sit on opposite sides of the colour wheel – remember that from GCSE art? – should remain apart (red and green, for example), but mustard and cobalt can look amazing together.

This is one of those combinations that works beautifully when it's split 50/50 – a boxy shirt tucked into high-waisted trousers is grown-up and gorgeous, whichever way you choose to top and tail it.

PURPLE AND YELLOW

ANOTHER case of opposites attracting in a major way, mixing yellow and purple may seem challenging (to say the least) but give it a go and you might be surprised.

The key to finding the right balance is to stick with either sugary shades (think lemon and parma violet), or deeper tones like sunflower and orchid – try this duo for a winning wedding season look.

Neverland is back on the market

The Neverland Ranch in California that Michael Jackson called home from 1988 onwards was controversial as it was luxurious.

Created by a man with the imagination of a child but the chequebook of a global superstar, it featured two railways, fairground rides, a petting zoo, tennis courts, three lakes and at least four properties.

Jackson bought the estate for $19 million from a golf course magnate and then spent £35 million turning into a fantasy home worthy of its name, which was taken from author JM Barrie's book Peter Pan.

But the estate was dogged by controversy. A fire gutted much of the main house in 1992 and in 2003 it was searched by police after Jackson was charged with multiple counts of molesting a minor.

BACK ON TRACK: Michael Jackson's Neverland Ranch is for sale again complete with its own railways

And a year before his death Jackson's money problems forced him to move out while a financial rescue package was put together.

Jackson died in 2009 aged 50 just before embarking on a comeback tour. Neverland, after being stripped of its amusement fair, was later put on the market for $100 million.

But it failed to find a buyer and has now been relisted at $67 million.

Its main French-style mansion contains six bedrooms, two large bathrooms, guest houses, a swimming pool and a 50-seat movie theatre.

The estate also has a new name – Sycamore Valley Ranch – and is listed with agent Joyce Rey of Coldwell Banker Previews International.

HOT GOSSIP

Where cider-loving Rosie lived

AUTHOR Laurie Lee's 1959 novel Cider with Rosie has sold more than six million copies, but why would a book about the Gloucestershire countryside during the aftermath of WWI strike such a chord with so many readers?

Laurie Lee's autobiographical tome is not so much about the changes that mechanisation brought to the Cotswolds countryside after the war, but more about Lee's unusual childhood in the village of Slad.

It was also racy stuff for the time. The book's title refers to the author's childhood friend Rosie Burdock, to whom as a teenager he loses his virginity while drinking cider with her under a hay wagon.

In the novel he documents how "that first long secret drink of golden fire, juice of those valleys and of that time, wine of wild orchards, of russet summer, of plump red apples, and Rosie's burning cheeks".

Although the book's connections with the countryside around Slad are well documented, and very well worn by thousands of tourists every year, a new one has emerged.

Local Amy Tolley, who is selling her four-bedroom historic home called The Lamp House in nearby Painswick, only recently discovered that her home was home to the Burdocks.

She says it was named after the Jubilee lamp commemorating Queen Victoria's 60th anniversary erected nearby in 1904 and, ironically given Rosie's liking of cider, was a temperance hotel at one point.

It's for sale through Savills Cirencester (01285 627 550) for £1.25m.

Alan Turing's childhood home determine if a computer's intelligence can be distinguished from a human one. But in 1952 Turing was charged with gross indecency under the UK's then Criminal Law for conducting a sexual relationship with another man, and agreed to undergo horrific chemical injections rather than go to prison. On June 9, 1954 he was found dead at his home and is thought to have committed suicide.

His childhood home from happier days is now for sale in Leonards-on-Sea in East Sussex, where he lived and was cared for by friends while his parents travelled to and from India, where his father worked in the colonial civil service. Agent Rush, Witt & Wilson (01424 442 443) says the three-bedroom property is 100 yards from the seaside town's promenade and is for sale at £300,000.

ALAN Turing would have remained an obscure computing pioneer confined to the footnotes of history had his amazing but also tragic life story not been highlighted by campaigners, playwrights and, more recently, Benedict Cumberbatch in 2014 film, The Imitation Game.

After a brilliant academic career, Turing's genius came to the fore in WWII during which he worked at Bletchley Park as a code-breaker, famously cracking the German Enigma codes.

Although his work there remained a state secret, he received an OBE after the war and went on to work on the development of computers. In 1950 he devised the Turing Test, which is still used today to

INTERIORS >with Lesley Taylor

The Easter weekend is a great opportunity to re-tile a wall. For inspiration check out The Baked Tile Company's new collection at bakedtiles.co.uk

Add some serious kerb appeal by sprucing up any outside space

For a real wow factor give your front door a bold new look

Holiday revamp

You can enjoy the four-day Easter break and still tick some jobs off the DIY to-do list, says Lesley Taylor

Easter is almost upon us and for many it's a time for family, food and far too much chocolate. But to others, the four-day break signals the start of DIY season.

If you'd rather not spend the four-day weekend knee deep in paint and power tools but still want to make some very real improvements to your home, there are plenty of smaller jobs you can take on that will have a real impact and leave plenty of time to relax.

Key colours to consider here include yellow – which range from deep mustard to pale butters – vibrant emerald, pale blue and greenery, though if your hallway is relatively small or features little light, you should opt for the lighter on-trend tones, such as mushroom, stone white or taupe. Zoffany's warm white paint is always a winning look.

For added impact, and where you don't wish to replace the flooring, you could also add a runner.

Tile without toil

Tiling can be a real chore, especially when you have to strip the existing tiles. But did you know you can tile straight over the top of them?

As long as they are in good condition, even and can take the weight of the new tiles, you can simply lay them on top.

The key colour palettes for the bathroom this season are all about neutrals – whites, greys and cool browns. These go hand in hand with bright pops of colour, which you can introduce with a few accessories.

Create a feature wall

Features walls surfed a wave of popularity some years ago, and this spring's trends of jungle and nature-inspired wallpapers means this movement is well and truly back. Helpfully, feature walls are also an effective way to completely transform the entire look and feel of your living space.

When deciding upon which wall you want to draw attention to, you should bear in mind where it may lead the eye – avoid the one that leads across to the view of next door's wild jungle of a garden or sits in front of the overflowing built-in storage.

You could also choose the fireside wall – painting the surface that protrudes, go for the largest wall that's free from blockages or opt for an area where the dining table is placed. On-trend wallpaper this season includes butterflies, jungle-inspired fauna, birds and florals.

Make a grand entrance

Create a home that welcomes you in by re-decorating your hallway.

It might sound a time-consuming task but as long as it's flat and free from creases, you needn't strip the paper completely.

If you like to frequently change the look of your home, opt for paintable wallpaper which you can re-paint whenever you wish.

Add some kerb appeal

Making over your door can demand as little as a few hours from the first rub down to the last lick of paint. Eye catching, modern colours have become increasingly popular in recent years and include: duck egg blue, grey, deep green, bright yellow and olive green, though if you're thinking of selling up any time soon you may want to plump for white, which research shows most home buyers to prefer.

Couple your freshly-painted door with a few extra touches for plenty of kerb appeal. You could also buy some planters, hot wash your drive, mow your lawn if you have one, add hanging baskets or topiary balls to frame the door and scrub down and wash your windows.

Curtain call

If you have traditional curtains, changing the pelmet can completely transform their look. Choosing a contrasting colour can introduce interest, while switching from gathered or detailed pelmets to a smooth, featureless pelmet track can also update the look from traditional to contemporary.

TOPTIPS

Lesley's top tips for getting the most out of the Easter break:

- Plan so you don't waste time choosing what jobs you are going to undertake
- Stock up on materials before the weekend gets underway
- Research all jobs thoroughly before starting
- Don't rush
- Start early in the day to ensure you can make the most of the rest of the weekend

GARDENING >with Caroline Knight

Why kids are great in the garden!

THERE'S absolutely no doubt that gardening, in all its various guises, is a great activity for kids. Not only can it provide a whole lot of fun but it has huge educational and health implications too. Let's look at the great positive benefits of gardening with children:

- Growing food with kids encourages them to try eating their produce – leading to a greater chance of them enjoying a healthy, balanced diet throughout their lives.
- The language of science can be applied and enjoyed – children will soon be using scientific terminology and, what's more, they will understand it. There's great excitement to be had in sprouting seeds during germination; talking about the growing medium, light, watering, feeding, habitats and the naming of different parts of plants.
- Kids just love to get their hands dirty! It provides a great balance to the highly-sanitised existence forced upon them in most activities. The 'hygiene hypothesis' suggests that childhood exposure to germs can help to improve immunity to disease.
- The physical activity experienced during gardening is an excellent way to get children moving about, away from digital enticements. There's nothing more 'down to earth' than digging, pushing a wheelbarrow, moving soil and carrying watering cans. Gardening builds up strength, balance and coordination – and a nurturing attitude.
- Caring for plants is a soothing, positive activity that allows children to focus on something outside their normal classroom-based tasks. Most kids love the opportunity to do something active outside – and they don't realise just how much they are learning. It releases stress, reduces anxiety levels and improves self-esteem.

■ Which other topics can be incorporated into gardening tasks? Maths, literacy, art, science, physical education, PSHE (personal, social and health education) and more, including 'responsibility'.

■ There's absolutely no doubt that social skills are engaged and improved during gardening activities. It's a great opportunity for team building, communication and exercising reasoning skills. There are leadership opportunities together with practice at following instructions and turn-taking.

■ Gardening forms a great introduction to environmental topics. Recycling, energy, organics, composting, nature, the seasons, drought, flooding, the effects of the sun and more.

■ Perfectplants.co.uk is an on-line supplier of garden plants and house plants. Also garden equipment, furniture and gifts.

■ Your chance to nominate a young person who might turn out to be the RHS Young School Gardener of the Year 2017!

There's just under four weeks left for you to nominate a young person who could be selected as the RHS Young School Gardener of the Year. Each year the RHS selects a young person, aged 5-16 years, who demonstrates a true passion for gardening. The successful pupil will be someone who has made an outstanding contribution to their school or local community – demonstrating skills beyond their years.

The award is supported by Gabriel Ash, a company that supplies superior quality greenhouses, cold frames and glasshouses, endorsed by the RHS. The prize for the winner includes a quality cold frame and £500 for the child's school and all finalists will also receive a Baby Grand Cold Frame, worth £475 each.

Nominees must attend a school registered to the RHS Campaign for School Gardening. Un-registered schools can sign up for free at www.schoolgardening.rhs.org.uk.

Follow the instructions to nominate a young person by completing and returning an entry form, using the 'nominate now' facility on the website and explaining why the young person should win. The deadline for entries is 5pm Friday 28th April 2017. The RHS will shortlist 16 finalists at which point each person will be sent a digital camera in order to make a short film demonstrating why they are an exemplary gardener.

Four winners, one from each age group, will then be selected by a panel of celebrity gardening judges and judges from the RHS. One of these four will then be selected as the overall winner and crowned RHS Young School Gardener of the Year 2017.

Thursday, March 30, 2017

By Lee Gibson

Swedish car maker Volvo is currently riding the crest of a wave. The successful revamp of its all-new 90 series has firmly established the brand in the premium class in the last year or so, while it also remains at the forefront of the development of driverless technology.

All of which helped global sales for the Gothenburg-based marque reach a record 534,332 last year, up more than six per cent on 2015.

A constant among all the change, however, has been the XC60 – which has been Volvo's best-selling model since 2009, the year after its launch.

It is now the XC60's turn to get the full makeover treatment, however, and the all-new model was unveiled at the Geneva Motor Show in March and is expected to arrive in UK showrooms late this year.

That, though, means there could well be some bargains to be had on the current version if you're prepared to haggle – and you won't be getting a nine year old model if you do.

The existing XC60 underwent a minor nip and tuck in 2013 which means it still looks fresh and, actually, quite distinctive with its bold grille, prominent shoulder line and tall rear tail-lights – a nod to those old Volvo estates from the seventies that we all remember.

Advances in safety technology and new engines, including the 2.0-litre D4 diesel in my car, have also been incorporated along the way and this is a formidable family motor – offering comfort, space and decent economy for its size.

Sportiness is not the point here but the powerful D4 engine pumps out 190ps – hitting the 0-62mph benchmark in a snip over eight seconds and going on to a top speed of 130mph, while offering a claimed 60 miles per gallon on average when mated with a smooth eight-speed automatic gearbox.

You can only have this engine with front-wheel drive but unless you regularly venture off the beaten track that should do just fine.

Handling is assured, plenty of

AT A GLANCE

- Model: Volvo XC60 D4 SE Lux Nav Auto
- Price: £37,185
- Mechanical: 190ps, 1,969cc, 4cyl diesel engine driving front wheels via 8-speed automatic transmission grip helping the XC60 stay settled and fairly flat through corners, but can't really be described as nimble, as you'd expect in such a sizeable car.

Comfort is very much the name of the game and any imperfections in the road surface are ironed out well while little engine, road or wind noise intrudes into the cabin – which in this SE Lux Nav trim offers luxury to match premium German rivals.

There's genuine room for five adults to get comfortable in the accommodating leather seats, the driver's benefitting from electronic adjustment with memory function, and plenty of personal storage.

The boot features a powered tailgate and, at 495 litres to the parcel shelf, should cope with most family needs – with loading made easier by the absence of any lip to lift things over. The 40/20/40 split rear seats all individually fold flat, offering plenty of versatility and up to 1,455 litres of space.

Standard equipment with SE Lux Nav grade includes satnav, aircon, keyless entry and ignition, digital radio, Bluetooth, automatic lights and wipers, powered folding wing mirrors, cruise control, stability and traction control and the City Safety collision mitigation system.

Volvo's trademark floating console does, admittedly, feel a little dated these days with an abundance of switches which are small and fiddly to use on the move, and also means that there's only room for a small infotainment display screen.

This will likely be replaced by a larger XC90-style touchscreen interface in the new version – but if you can live without that this XC60 still offers plenty of style and practicality.

If you're tempted just remember to barter, as dealers will be looking to clear stock ahead of the arrival of its replacement.

Haileybury

House Parent

from September 2017

Highfield (Lower School boarding house - Years 7 and 8, boys and girls.)

A co-educational HMC boarding and day school for 11-18 years

Haileybury seeks an enthusiastic and energetic resident House Parent for Highfield, the Lower School boarding house.

Highfield comprises both a boys' and girls' wing, and has a resident matron and two resident tutors. The House Parent will be responsible for c. 25 boarders and flexi boarders, line-managing the Highfield tutorial team and developing the evening and weekend activity programmes. As Haileybury looks to expand its Lower School boarding, the House Parent will also have responsibility for liaising with feeder prep schools and developing new links, with the aim of filling the boarding house in the coming years, to its capacity of 48 boarders (24 girls and 24 boys.) The successful candidate will offer good managerial and administrative skills, be a warm and friendly role model to the pupils (helping to create a homely atmosphere for many first-time boarders) and have the ability to liaise with current and prospective parents, and Prep School Heads. They will also oversee pastoral and disciplinary matters within the House. This may be a teaching or non-teaching role.

The vast majority of our teaching staff live on site in College provided accommodation.

Closing date - 31 March 2017

ROAD TRAFFIC REGULATION ACT 1984 - SECTION 14(1)(a) AND (c) THE M11 MOTORWAY (JUNCTION 7) (TEMPORARY RESTRICTION AND PROHIBITION OF TRAFFIC) ORDER 2017

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN THAT Highways England Company Limited (a) intends to make an Order on the M11 Motorway in Essex to enable carriageway resurfacing, renewal of road markings and routine maintenance works to be carried out in safety.

The works are expected to take place in phases and to last for approximately 14 weeks starting on, or after, Monday 24 April 2017. A temporary mandatory speed limit would be in force in the interest of safety in conjunction with slip road and lane closures.

The effect of the Order would be to –

1. impose for 24 hours daily, a speed limit of 50 miles per hour on the M11 –
- southbound carriageway from a point 1500 metres north of the Foster Street/Harlow Common overbridge Harlow to a point 115 metres south of the M11 J7 south overbridge,
- northbound carriageway from a point 100 metres north of the Weald Hall Lane overbridge, North Weald Bassett to a point 190 metres north of the J7 northern overbridge (Hastingwood Roundabout), and
- northbound exit slip road at J7, and
2. close alternately overnight (8pm to 6am) the M11 –
- southbound exit slip road at J7 – diverting traffic to continue southbound to J6 and exit, then join the M25 heading westbound to J26, then turning around and heading eastbound to J27, exiting here to join the M11 northbound up to J7, then via the J7 northbound exit slip road to continue on their journey, and,
- northbound exit slip road at J7 – diverting traffic to continue northbound to J8 and exit, then join the M11 southbound to J7 to exit onto Hastingwood Roundabout and continue on their journey.

A vehicle width restriction of 3.25 metres would apply at times on the M11 within the extents of the temporary speed limit.

The temporary mandatory speed limit (which would not apply to emergency service or special forces vehicles), and closures (which would not apply to emergency service, traffic officer, works or winter maintenance vehicles) would be clearly indicated by traffic signs throughout the works.

The Order would come into force on 17 April 2017 and have a maximum duration of eighteen months.

SEEING RED: George Franks and Thomas Norman

Judo pair, 10, enjoy rumble

HARLOW Judo Club entered two players in the Northern Home Counties Red Belt Rumble which took place in High Wycombe.

George Franks and Thomas Norman, both aged ten, fought very hard but faced some faced stiff competition in the big groups.

There were some good techniques from both players, with Thomas taking a very creditable fifth place in only his third competition, whilst George collected a bronze medal.

Harlow Judo Club coach Mick Ellis said: "I am very pleased with both my players."

"Thomas is still very much a novice competitor, but they both fought very well and listened to my instructions."

The club, which is based in Foldcroft, also caters for those with special needs and has a coach specifically for this type of work.

For training times and more details on the club visit www.harlowjudoclub.com or contact Gill Ellis on 07976 955905.

Trio set new best times

THREE Harlow Running Club members achieved personal best times for the distance and a club record at the Hackney Marshes parkrun on Saturday morning.

Sharon Wright finished 31st out of 243 finishers and was first female in a PB of 19min 47sec, which is a new club female Vet 35 record.

Adrian Fell was 22nd (19:11), Martyn Coulter 26th (19:16, PB) and Andrew Smith 117th (24:06, PB).

At the Harlow parkrun, Aferwerk Rossom was victorious, coming home in first place out of 162 finishers in a fantastic 17:34.

Selected other finishers: Amanuel Tesfay (3rd, 19:07); Danny McCree (5th, 19:16 PB); Terry Ridge (17th, 22:07); Catherine Ridge (19th and 1st female, 22:28); Andy Smith (21st, 22:33 PB); Martin Westley (24th, 22:46 PB); Paul Dixon (33rd and 3rd Vet 50m, 23:26); Mark Moulds (35th, 23:44 PB); Spencer Broods (34th, 23:48); Viola Tam (40th, 24:46); Jim Bates (47th and 1st Vet 70, 25:50).

Harlow make history in last game at Rams Gorse

HARLOW were too good for lowly Lowestoft and Yarmouth as they romped to a remarkable 151-0 victory points in a one-sided London Three North East match on Saturday.

With a large crowd in attendance to celebrate the last ever first XV game at Rams Gorse before they move to their new ground in June, the hosts started at full throttle and scored the first of their 23 tries after three minutes.

Harlow crossed the whitewash eight times in the first half, with Danny Smith, making his return to the starting line-up following injury, converting seven of them, to make it 54-0 at the break.

The second half was one way traffic. Ross Stalley, Ryan McGlone, Andrew Tarsey and Scott Whitby all completed their hat-tricks as Harlow ran in 15 tries. Smith slotted over 18 conversions to end up with 41 points in total.

This was the second time this season Harlow have racked up a century of points, the last time a 107-4 win over bottom of the table Ilford Wanderers.

The victory leaves Harlow, who are second on 78 points but with a game in hand on leaders Wanstead, full of confidence for their last two fixtures.

They know that if they win them both they will secure the league title.

The crunch game is this Saturday when they play third placed East London.

Coach Lee Harron said: "I'm delighted with the result."

"The boys maintained concentration throughout and it was good to put on a show for the old boys who came to watch."

Sonko puts Hawks in sight of top five

Boss Chapman hails defender's role in play-off push

By Andrew Franczak

andrew.franczak@hertsessexnews.co.uk

HARLOW Town boss Danny Chapman has hailed the performance of defender Ibrahima Sonko, who helped the Hawks see off fellow Ryman Premier play-off hopefuls Tonbridge Angels 3-0.

Sonko bagged a brace in Saturday's crucial match, which moved Harlow back into contention for a play-off spot on 63 points and only two away from Tonbridge in fifth.

"He's now got three in two games," said Chapman. "He got us our winner at Burgess Hill in the last minute."

"We all know what he is capable of doing in the box, and I'm pleased for him, and for the team.

"He was excellent in both boxes – there wasn't a bad performance from anyone, but he really stood out on Saturday."

Chapman added that the spirit in the camp was sky high, and this was helping the team get positive results.

Togetherness

"The team, in the past three or four weeks, there has been a real togetherness in what we are trying to achieve – it's been there all season, but it's really shown recently."

"At the start of season we had fantastic home form but poor away form and we've now won four of the last five away games – that has put us in good stead.

MATCH WINNER: Harlow's Ibrahima Sonko

"We've managed to turn the fortunes around although we've put ourselves in a position where we're still in with a shout."

"A lot can still happen, but all we can do is concentrate on ourselves and hopefully if we can win the next five games then we can say we've given ourselves the best opportunity – and the rest will take care of itself.

"There's still that outside chance we can do it and the belief is there amongst the players."

Hawks host Burgess Hill, who are sixth from bottom in the table, this Saturday.

"They are down near the bottom and they need points to pull themselves away from the relegation zone, so they will be coming here and looking for the win," warned Chapman.

"We had a very close game with them at their place. We've got to have that same consistency level we've had in the last four games – that belief and intent."

"If we produce that then we've got a great chance of picking up another three points."

"Michael Kaluf will be out for rest of season with a hamstring tear which is very disappointing for him and for us. But apart from that we are in a good place on the injury front."

Sonko got Harlow off to the best start possible on Saturday when he headed home in the third minute, before adding his second of the game 11 minutes from time.

Fabian Simms hit a third five minutes later as the Hawks won away from home for a fourth game in a row.
